11-13 August 2015
Aberdeen, Scotland, UK

Speaker of Session 12

MICROMECHANICS

Dr. Young June Yoon is an assistant professor in the Center for Integrated General Education at Hanyang University, Seoul, Korea. He also serves the coordinator of International Exchange Office at College of Engineering of Hanyang University.

He obtained a bachelor's degree (B.E.) in Mechanical Engineering from Myongji University, Korea and two master's degrees (M.E; M.Phil) and a doctoral degree (Ph.D.) from City College of New York.

His research interests are to estimate the mechanical properties of biological tissues by using micromechanical analysis and wave propagation analysis. Also developing bone remodeling theory is another his research interests.
